Excerpt from Rhode Island in the Colonial Wars: A List of Rhode Island Soldiers Sailors, in the Old French Indian War, 1755-1762 The conflict of French and English interests in the Ohio Valley served as the prelude, and Washington's defeat of Jumonville near Fort Du Quesne on May 27th 1754 as the spark, which ignited the fourth French war in which Rhode Island participated. This struggle called by European historians The Seven Years War is better known in America as The Old French and Indian War. Military preparations were made in both England and France as well as in the Colonies. On January 1st 1755 the Rhode Island: General Assembly voted to raise a company of 100 men for the emergency. As is usual, the length and intensity of the impending struggle was underestimated. In February the number was increased to 113, apparently to allow for officers, some of whom were appointed. A committee of War of five men was established to manage the military affairs of the Colony, In March 1755, before the 106 men had been enlisted, it was voted to raise four companies of 100 men each to take part in the secret expedition against Crown Point. The acts calling for 113 men were repealed and the officers transferred to the new companies. Christopher Harris was appointed Colonel of this expeditionary regiment.
